

Sanchez v. State

Defendant made a motion to quash indictment on the same day that his trial was scheduled. The motion was granted and the State appealed, asserting that the motion was untimely. The Court of Criminal Appeals granted the State's petition for review and affirmed the trial court. The Court stated that under the language of Article 45.019(f) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the defendant's motion to quash the indictment was timely up until the day on which the actual trial commenced.
